IN THE CHURCH: DIVERSITY OF MEMBERS, BUT A UNITY OF PURPOSE

In today's second reading, St. Paul presents us with the analogy of the church as the body. And just as the different parts of the body play different roles, so also the different people who form the church, the Body of Christ;

In the Creed we say, "I believe in one holy, catholic, and apostolic Church". Although the Church is one, that does not mean it is uniform. It is not uniform, but unified. So, there's a diversity of members within this one body. Just like in the human body, not every part of the body looks the same, and not every part of the body does the same thing, has the same function... the same thing is true in the Church. There is a diversity of members but a unity of purpose, a unity within Christ. The unity of the members of the church is rooted in our Baptism. We were all baptized into one body when we became incorporated into the Body of Christ through Baptism, and we were all made to drink of the one Spirit. So, whether Jew or Greek, slave or free, man or woman, we all have a unity that flows from the Sacrament of Baptism, which that incorporates us into the Mystical Body of Christ.

None of the organs of the body can suffice to be a complete organism. So, Paul says: If the whole body were an eye... If the whole body were an ear... you can imagine of what a gigantic organ that would be! But at the same time nor organ can say it is not important. If the ear says, "Well, I'm not as important as the eye," or the eye might be tempted to think, "I'm not as important as the ear or the mouth or whatever" ... the reality is all the parts of the body are indispensable in the fact that they work together.

So, although you might have a small part in the body of Christ in the Church, that doesn't mean you're dispensable, and it doesn't mean you're not important. Each person has a role to play through the gift of the Holy Spirit that they received in Baptism.

If one member suffers, all suffer together; if one member is honoured, all rejoice together. (1 Corinthians 12:26) And likewise, when one of us is honoured, we all rejoice together.

 This is what we are calling for from all members.
 We should pull together for Christ is counting on each and everyone one of us!
